

Project Management Institute Honours Authors David Hillson, PhD, PMP, PMI Fellow, and Peter Simon, PMP with the 2013 PMI David I. Cleland Project Management Literature Award

The Project Management Institute (PMI), the world's largest association for project managers, announces that it has honoured David Hillson, PhD, PMP, PMI Fellow, and Peter Simon, PMP with the 2013 PMI David I. Cleland Project Management Literature Award for his authorship of Practical Project Risk Management: the ATOM Methodology - Second Edition. The award will be presented at the PMI Awards Ceremony, which takes place just prior to the PMI Global Congress 2013—North America in New Orleans, Louisiana, USA.

The PMI David I. Cleland Project Management Literature Award recognises authors for advancing the project management knowledge, practices, procedures, concepts or techniques that demonstrate the value of using project management. The publication may be on historical, current or future endeavours.

About the Authors

Dr. Hillson is well-known for his talents in risk management, working as an international risk consultant in over 40 countries and across the construction, telecommunications, pharmaceutical, transport, energy, IT, defence, and government industries. Known globally as The Risk Doctor, Dr. Hillson has over twenty-five years of risk management experience, and has written nine books on the topic, in addition to contributing to several others and authoring many papers, articles, and briefings. Dr. Hillson was elected a PMI Fellow in 2010, and received the PMI Eric Jenett PM Excellence Award in 2011 and the PMI Distinguished Contribution Award in 2002.

Mr. Simon has 30 years of experience in project, risk, and resource management, working as Managing Partner and Director of Lucidus Consulting Limited. He spent his early career working for organisations across the energy, utilities, and transportation sectors as a project management and project services practitioner, he has spent his later career building successful project management consultancy and development arms of the PMProfessional group of companies, as well as working as a freelance project management consultant and spending a period as the European Technical Director for ESI International.
